If this is somehow your first set of A Monster for Every Season miniatures, there are four other sets just like this one with a ton more monsters: Spring, Summer, Autumn, and Winter. You can get them by clicking on those links.

Welcome back to the fifth issue of A Monster For Every Season, an ever-expanding set of monsters for your tabletop gaming adventures. Or just to color.

This is the first volume of a second "year" of sets—Spring 2, I'm calling it, because it's like the first Spring set but a second time. Complex rationale, I know.

In this volume we're focusing on several of the truly dizzying number of animal-like species that inhabit your typical fantasy world, from cat people to frog people to snake people to magical celestial beast people to people who change from people into other animals. We also have a wide variety of faerie creatures, particularly those from other planes, as well as a surfeit of bards to sing their praises and also tell you what surfeit means. Bards are helpful like that. And we have updates to many of the categories from Spring 1, because who doesn't need more trolls? I mean, aside from literally everyone on the internet.

Next will be Summer 2, which will feature various Birdfolk, Celestials, Pirates, Psychics, Things That Eat Psychics (not the final category name), and a lot more. But don't hold me to a hard release date of this upcoming summer. I was able to put out the first round of four seasons all in one calendar year because I had done a lot of the work for them ahead of time, over the course of several years—and this time, I'm starting each season from scratch. So Summer 2 might come out this summer, or it might come out during another season, or possibly not even until next summer. Who knows? I tend to draw the monsters in little bursts around other projects (like updating the main comic), so there's no telling how long it will take. I will do my best to continue to feed your insatiable all-consuming hunger for more monsters going forward.

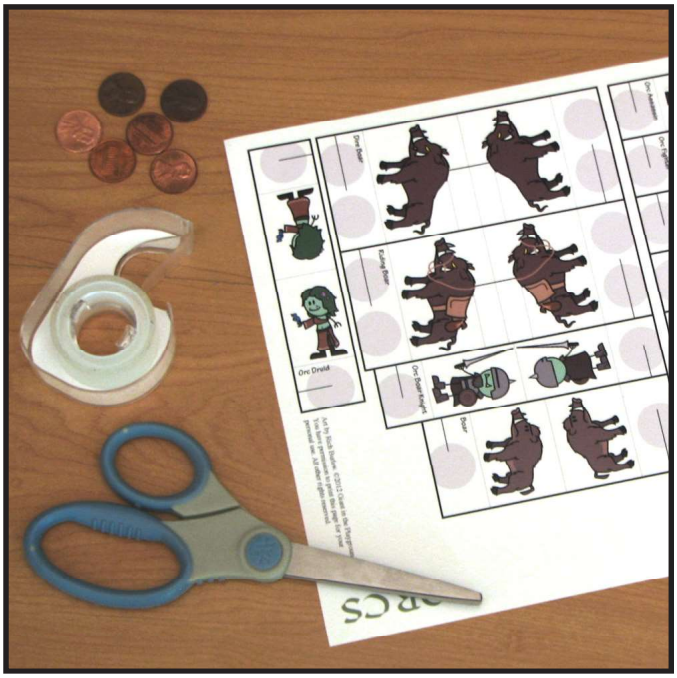
Assembly Instructions

With these simple instructions, you should be able to assemble the miniatures in this document in no time.

What You'll Need



- A pair of scissors.
- Some pennies (or any easily available coins with a diameter around 1.9 cm)
- Tape; standard transparent office tape will do, but so will any other tape with a width of about 0.75 inches (1.9 cm).
- A sheet of paper printed with the miniatures you want to assemble.

Regular copier paper will hold up for one or two sessions, but if you plan on reusing them week after week, try printing on heavier paper stock. Photo paper or cardstock works nicely.

Step 1

Once you've printed the pages you want, cut out each miniature along the edges of the black rectangle that encloses each one (not on the light grey lines).

Step 2

Cut the black lines that run through the two grey circles at the top and bottom of each miniature.

If you're using thin paper, you may want to skip this step. It may make the finished mini too flimsy.

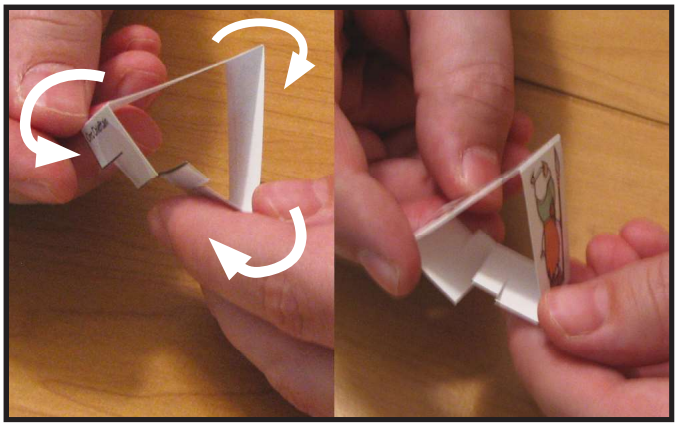
Step 3

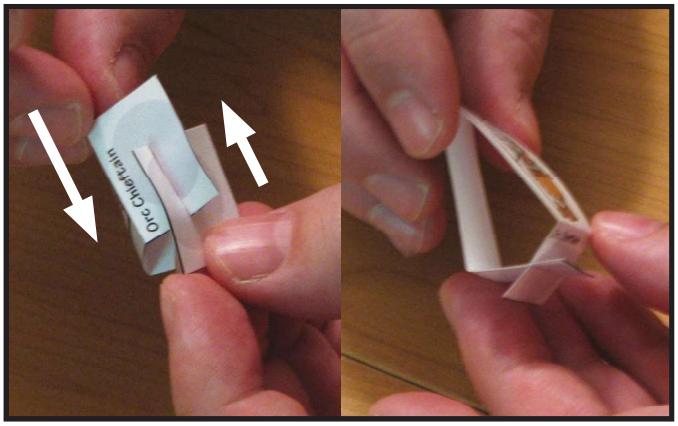
Fold each miniature along the grey lines, creasing it inward, away from the printed image. There should be three folds, all facing the same direction: one in the middle, and one on each side beneath the feet of the illustrated character.



Step 4

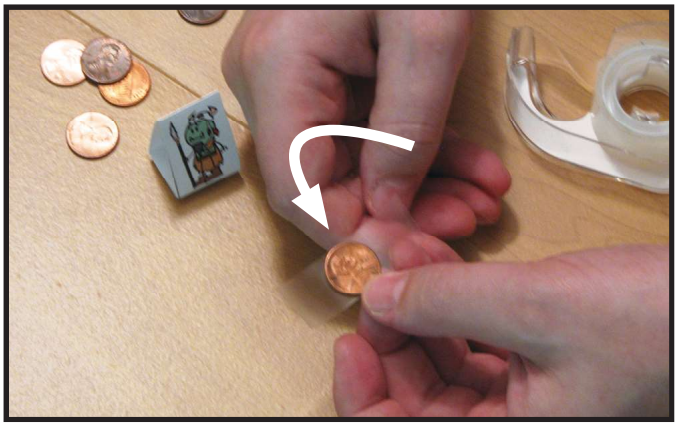
Partially unfold the miniature so that the two grey circles on either end overlap. Fit the cut tabs together. You should have a tiny tent-like shape.

> Obviously, if you skipped Step 2, you don't need to worry about the cut tabs now!



Step 5

Take a penny and put it in the middle of a piece of tape about 2 inches (5 cm) long.



Step 6

Thread the piece of tape (sticky side down) through the end of the tent until the penny rests about where the grey circle is printed on the miniature. About a half inch of tape should stick out of each end of the tent.

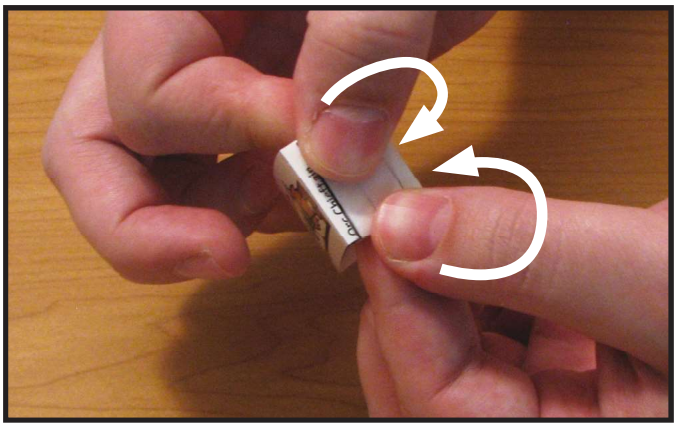
Step 7

Fold the exposed ends of the tape down and around and stick them to the bottom of the tent. Press the tape down all over so it sticks.



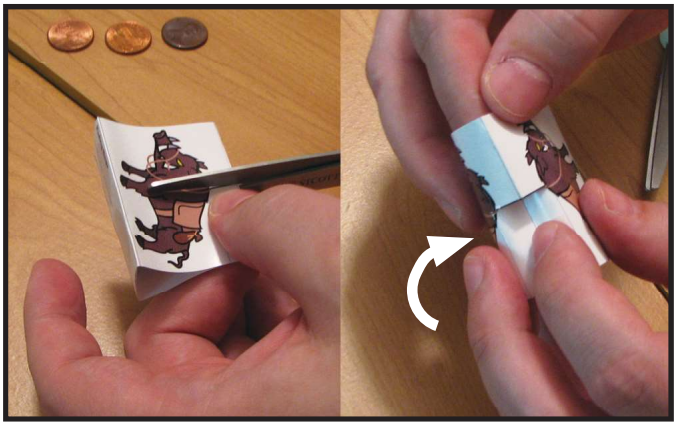
Step 8

Done! Enjoy your paper miniature!

Minis for different sized monsters—like the riding boar pictured here—may use more than one penny, but the principle is the same. But some monsters use smaller dimes (10¢) or larger quarters (25¢) instead. Don't worry, they're marked!

Mounts

Monsters that can serve as mounts have two additional lines near the top of the tent. In order to make the mount ridable, carefully cut the black line on both sides, then fold in on both grey lines.



The cross-section of your miniature should look like a trangle from the front and the letter "M" from the back.

Now you've created a ledge that should support one regular-sized miniature!

What we said about paper weight goes double for mounts! If you're planning on using a mount for more than one session, print it on heavy paper.
